DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 26 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed recitation of a use, without setting forth any steps involved in the process, results in an improper definition of a process, i.e., results in a claim which is not a proper process claim under 35 U.S.C. 101. See for example Ex parte Dunki, 153 USPQ 678 (Bd.App. 1967) and Clinical Products, Ltd. v. Brenner, 255 F. Supp. 131, 149 USPQ 475 (D.D.C. 1966).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 21, 23, 25, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Abroad range or limitation followed by linking terms (e.g., preferably, maybe, for instance, especially) and a narrow range or limitation within the broad range or limitation is considered indefinite since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired.

Claim 23 recites the limitation "may be cut" in line 2. It is unclear whether the plug is or is not cut to an appropriate required dimension.

Claim 25 recites the limitation "if required" in line 2. It is unclear whether the jointing is achieved by heat sealing or not achieved by heat sealing.

Claim 26 provides for the use of an implantable prosthesis, but, since the claim does not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 12-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rutkow et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,356,432). Rutkow et al. disclose the invention as claimed including an implantable prosthesis having a flexible plug (ref. 10) of surgically compatible mesh material (col. 3, lines 4-5), the plug having an elongate form (plug extends from upper, open side to ref. 20), the cross-sectional profile having three or more (see ref. 22) projecting, longitudinal lobes, the apices of the lobes joined to form two linear sides (each apex of each of the lobes joins to two adjacent lobes and forms the linear side that runs the longitudinal length of the plug), the plug having a prismatic shape (the plug is shaped similar to a cone), the apices being joined to provide a generally triangular cross-sectional profile (if the cross-section were taken in the direction of the longitudinal axis, the profile would be that of a triangle), the plug having an open side (side opposite ref. 20) in the shape of a triangular profiled trough (there are several smaller triangular profiled troughs that make up the opening), the shape maintained by an internal support (ref. 14 and 16) formed of mesh material, the elongate mesh material having longitudinal webs (ref. 18) bonded to the inner surface of the outer profile (col. 3, line 15), the subunits having a triangular profile (the lobes have a base, a height, and three apices), the wall of the mesh being pleated circumferentially (ref. 18) to facilitate placement into a defect (see Fig. 4), the mesh having the capability of being cut to a required dimension from a stock length, the mesh material comprising polypropylene (col. 4, line 9) with jointing (ref. 18) achieved by heat sealing (col. 4, lines 23-28), and the prosthesis being used in the treatment of an opening found with inguinal hernia defects (col. 4, lines 53-55).
